Abstract: This paper discusses the importance of the role of the state in the development of the economy. It argues that the state should play a more active role in the economy, particularly in the areas of infrastructure development and social welfare. The paper also discusses the importance of the role of the private sector in the economy, and the need for a balance between the two.

How do we know? The authors used a series of experiments to test their hypotheses. In Experiment 1, they found that people who were asked to think about a specific emotion (e.g., happiness) were more likely to report feeling that emotion than those who were asked to think about a general emotion (e.g., "feel good").

1. Threats to validity
The strength of causal inferences depends on the extent to which the following threats to validity are controlled for:
  - Confounding
  - Selection
  - Maturation
  - Testing
  - Instrumentation
  - Regression
  - Mortality
  - Generalization
2. Experimental design
The experimental design is a plan or blueprint for the study. It specifies the procedures to be followed in the study, the data to be collected, and the methods of analysis. The design is a critical component of the study, as it determines the validity of the inferences that can be drawn from the data.
3. Internal validity
Internal validity refers to the extent to which the study can establish a causal relationship between the treatment and the outcome. It is the degree to which the study can rule out alternative explanations for the observed effect. Internal validity is achieved when the study is free from threats to validity.

3-Volume Set KEVIN SHILLINGTON.,2005      Papers in African Prehistory J. D. Fage,R. A. Oliver,1970-10-01 Professor Fage and Professor Oliver the editors of this collection are distinguished historians of Africa and as founding editors of the Journal of African History they both established the journal and used it to mark out developing areas of the subject In directing the journal they have pursued an active policy of commissioning articles in fields where the literature was scanty and in this volume they have collected together some of the most important articles they have published on African prehistory It is designed for the student of African history and the library that needs copies of frequently consulted papers to supplement its sets of periodicals All the articles contain either accounts of important research or more general review articles The book is illustrated with line diagrams and photographs One article which originally appeared in French has been translated into English      The Farmer's Weekly ,1929      Explanation of the Geological Map of the Country South of Nuanetsi, Nuanetsi and Beitbridge Districts M. K. Watkeys,T. J. Broderick,1979      Botanical Exploration Southern Africa Mary Gunn,L. E. W. Codd,1981-06-01 This text gives biographical accounts of the leading plant collectors and their activities in Southern Africa from the days of the East India Company until modern times      Picturing Change Brenda Schmahmann,2013-04-01 An in depth look at the evolving ethos of curating and collecting art at South African universities In Picturing Change Brenda Schmahmann explores the implications of deploying the visual domain in the service of transformative agendas and unpacks the complexities contradictions and slippages involved in this process She shows that although most new commissions have been innovative some universities have acquired works with potentially traditionalist even backward looking implications While the motives behind removing inherited imagery may be underpinned by a desire to unsettle white privilege in some cases such actions can also serve to maintain the status quo This book is unique in exploring the transformative ethos evident in the curation of visual culture at South African universities It will be invaluable to readers interested in public art the politics of curating and collecting as well as to those involved in transforming tertiary and other public institutions into spaces that welcome diversity Since South Africa s transition to democracy many universities have acquired new works of art that convey messages about the advantages of cultural diversity and engage critically with histories of racial intolerance and conflict Given concerns about the influence of British imperialism or Afrikaner nationalism on aspects of their inherited visual culture most tertiary institutions are also seeking new ways to manage their existing art collections and to introduce memorials insignia or regalia which reflect the universities newfound values and aspirations
