

Protein (A Poem) – By Dilantha Gunawardana

*Strings of gangly loops between helices and sheets
A creature that was born between ribosomal pleats
From a linear strand that folds finally to the third dimension
Bequeathing an enigma of mammoth proportion*

*Born within the womb of a maternal ribosome
To bequeath a sibling of the populous proteome
What rests truly inimitable in structure and sequence
An ambassador of a cell, bestowed her functional eloquence*

*She will be translated and embellished with chemical tabs
Yet she will never lose her true beauty, in cells or labs
She journeys sometimes for a kiss of a soul mate
Sometimes dancing in an orgy of a scaffold's date*

*She was born to evolution from a godly ribozyme
Who still lives in glory as a deity in his titan prime
In the biochemistry of providence, there lies the beauty of her architecture
Of amino-acid bricks that erect near-perfect fortresses of sculpture*

*A journeyman that channels down a signal's stream
Until destiny is found to realize a long-lived dream
Where in one small function, effector or messenger
Lies the scripture of biology, in the confluence of a merger*

Can poetry act as an aesthetic amplification device akin to a microscope through which we can sense minute or nearly imperceptible phenomena such as the folding of molecules into their three dimensional shapes the transformations that make up the life cycle of a silkworm or the vaporous movements that constitute the ever shifting edges of clouds We tend to think of these subjects as reserved for science but as Ada Smailbegovi argues twentieth and twenty first century writers have intermingled scientific methodologies with poetic form to reveal unfolding processes of change Their works can be envisioned as laboratories within which the methodologies of experimentation natural historical description and taxonomic classification allow poetic language to register the rhythms and durations of material transformation Poetics of Liveliness moves across scales to explore the realms of molecules fibers tissues and clouds It investigates works such as Christian B k s insertion of a poetic text into the DNA code of living bacteria in order to generate a new poem in the shape of a protein molecule Jen Bervin s considerations of silk fibers and their use in biomedicine Gertrude Stein s examination of brain tissues in medical school and its subsequent influence on her literary taxonomies of character and Lisa Robertson s studies of nineteenth century meteorology and the soft architecture of clouds In their attempt to understand physical processes unfolding within lively material worlds Smailbegovi contends these poets have developed a distinctive materialist poetics Structured as a poetic cosmology akin to Lucretius s On the Nature of Things which begins at the atomic level and expands out to the vastness of the universe Poetics of Liveliness provides an innovative and surprising vision of the relationship between science and poetry      Anthropocene Poetics David Farrier,2019-02-19 How poetry can help us think about and live in the Anthropocene by reframing our intimate relationship with geological time The Anthropocene describes how humanity has radically intruded into deep time the vast timescales that shape the Earth system and all life forms that it supports The challenge it poses how to live in our present moment alongside deep pasts and futures brings into sharp focus the importance of grasping the nature of our intimate relationship with geological time In Anthropocene Poetics David Farrier shows how contemporary poetry by Elizabeth Bishop Seamus Heaney Evelyn Reilly and Christian B k among others provides us with frameworks for thinking about this uncanny sense of time Looking at a diverse array of lyric and avant garde poetry from three interrelated perspectives the Anthropocene and the material turn in environmental philosophy the Plantationocene and the role of global capitalism in environmental crisis and the emergence of multispecies ethics and extinction studies Farrier rethinks the environmental humanities from a literary critical perspective Anthropocene Poetics puts a concern with deep time at the center defining a new poetics for thinking through humanity s role as geological agents the devastation caused by resource extraction and the looming extinction crisis      John O' London's ,1962      The Chambers Dictionary Allied Chambers,1998      Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature Supplement ,1927      Concise Oxford English
