Sookie's Place(s) Sarah Holder, 2016 Charlaine Harris bestselling paranormal romance series the Southern Vampire Mysteries is only beginning to be understood as more than a cultural phenomenon but rather as a highly politicized and critical work of fiction that shines through genre designations such as romance mystery and fantasy Much of this praise can be attributed to the series heroine Sookie Stackhouse who gracefully traverses boundaries that divide what are arguably racial and ethnic groups ever at odds with one another as they share political and social space Her adventures therefore pose significant questions concerning diversity equality and nationalism but more obviously they ask what southernness has to do with these issues of identity The SVM situates itself between south as place and south as imaginary insisting on the utility of this region and its attendant baggage by localizing issues plaguing American collective consciousness such as identity politics and civil equality class castes and poverty racism and homophobia violence and hate crimes Such a south allows for the misdirection of American rhetoric which demonizes the south as the nation's Other but employs its given role to effect change to take Americanness to task That is here the south operates as not only a state of being i.e. a place an identity etc but also a process This thesis aims to locate where the process South operates in the SVM in bodies between bodies across communities in order to map its myriad successes and failures and thereby create a blueprint for reading the series real repercussions
